The February Woman's Home Companion

Ida Farrell has written a fine article called "Patriotic Buying" for the February Woman's Home Companion. It points out how much could be saved by sensible ordering and elimination of deliveries by the stores. "The Highest of Beauty" is the story of a beauty parlor of Fifth Avenue, New York, as told to Corrine Lowe. Mary Heaton Vorse writes about "The Perfect Young Person," and there is an interesting article about Better Films in your town.

The fiction is fine this month, starting off with the first part of a new novel by Mark Lee Luther called "The Hope Chest." It will be concluded next month. Other stories are by Elizabeth Jordan, Nancy Gunter Boykin, and Mary Cutting.

Every department maintains its usual high standard, and the fashions, pictures, cooking, and all the others having interesting and instructive material.

This is a time of real Americanism and the American Girls Trio—Virgie Hyatt, Vera Miller, and Grace Hyatt, which appear on the Lyceum course Wednesday January, 23, will undoubtedly be given a splendid reception for they present a program which is genuinely American. "Their concert is a lecture course in patriotism," is the way a Kansas editor put it recently.

This company was not organized under its patriotic name just to fit the present conditions. The American Girls are a company which has won recognition during several seasons of Lyceum work. They are splendid, enthusiastic, accomplished girls who make everyone in the audience glad to be an American. The three young women all come from the same western city.

The program is one of wide versatility and includes saxophone and banjo trio, vocal numbers, solos on a variety of instruments and character songs in costume. The saxophone trio is one of the features of the evening. The audience will be sure to enjoy this music immensely.

"Their selections, teeming with wit, humor and pathos, are rendered with such a dash of spirit and warmth of heart" says a Texas editor, "that the emotions are kept constantly changing through it all. The audience goes home richer in soul and body."

"The dainty blending of voices," says the Walthill, Nebr. Times" combined with the delightful charm of the young women, made the vocal trios of the Misses Hyatt and Miss Miller a pleasing feature. The applause which followed their first number "Absence" was rewarded by the humorous "Cat song." Their saxophone trios had the distinct advantage of novelty. The audience enjoyed every number thoroughly."

The company is composed of Misses Grace and Virgie Hyatt and Vera Miller. Wednesday night at Paramount Theater
